RAILROAD HORRORS.

A Fast Train on the B. & O. Dashes into a Freight.

More Than Twenty Persons Burned in the Wreck.

Lives Lost in a Disaster on the Boston & Albany.

A Railroad Disaster

TIFFIN, Ohio, January 4 — The fast train on the Baltimore and Ohio railway which left New York about nine yesterday for Chicago with five coaches and four sleepers, all well filled with passengers collided with an eastbound freight seven miles east of this city about four this morning The fast train was about 50 minutes late and was running at the rate of sixty miles an hour Passing Republic, a small station, like a flash they rushed along to a curve one mile west of town, when suddenly the engineer saw a freight train under full headway within 100 yards of him He at once applied the brake, and reversed his engine, but it did no good, and the next instant the crash came telescoping the coaches and piling them upon each other

To add to the consternation of the horrible scene fire broke out in the SMOKING car and soon spread to other cars Many were killed outright while others were wedged in among broken cars The cars were slowly consumed by the flames The screams of the wounded and dying were heartrending but no assistance could be given, until a farmer awakened by the crash came, and with other neighbors worked like heroes to save the perishing

At this time nineteen dead bodies have been recovered and they lie burned and disfigured in the snow beside the track Help was sent from Republic and this city as soon as the news was received It is a fearful sight and recalls the Ashtabula horror of the winter of '76 It is impossible to give the names of the killed and wounded at this time The cause of the disaster is as yet unknown

TIFFIN January 4 One of the passengers of the ill-fated train says the train was the baltimore and Ohio express which left Washington at 10 a m yesterday. At 2 15 this morning he was awakened by being thrown violently from his berth The train consisted of the engine, baggage car, one coach and two sleepers The train collided with an eastbound freight which had got stalled a mile west of Republic. The two engines were utterly wrecked The coach was telescoped in the baggage car so completely that the two cars were completely crushed into the space of one The two sleepers did not leave the track The telescoped cars caught fire from a stove, and the mangled and crushed passengers imprisoned in the shattered wreck, shrieked in agony as the flames enveloped them The engineer and fireman of the freight leaped and saved themselves before the collision The engineer of the express had a leg broken and sustained a severe wound on the shoulder His fireman was caught between the engine and tender and died in a few minutes Uninjured passengers and residents of the neighborhood set to work to aid the wounded passengers in the burning cars, rescuing all who could be reached The baggageman of the express was thrown through the roof of the car, escaping with a broken leg The express messenger, who was seated beside him, was killed instantly No one in the sleepers was injured in the least. Among the passengers in the sleepers were Mrs Fish of Joliet, Illinois, a sister of General Logan, and her son Charles The shock was so terrific that farmers in the neighborhood took it to be an earthquake.

In the confusion of the wreck a hot dispute arose among the trainmen as to the responsibility of the disaster It appeared the freight was running on the time of the express The engineer was heard to remark that he had left the last siding with only thirty pounds of steam, and on the up grade east of Tiffin his engine went back on him and the train stalled No danger signals were sent out, and the express, running at full speed down grade, and around a curve, had no warning of the impending disaster on it an instant before the collision

TOLEDO January 4 The total number of passengers on the wrecked train was sixty five Ten dead bodies were taken out and three more are believed to be in the ruins. The names of the dead as far as identified are as follows F C Bartley, Washington, Wm Frederick Washington, fireman of the express, Joseph Osterman and two sons, of Martinsburg, West Virginia Mrs. Osterman and two other children were saved The smoker was entirely consumed, and all passengers in it killed All mail and express matter was destroyed About a dozen wounded have been taken to Republic, where they are being cared for by citizens

TIFFIN January 4 —It is now estimated that twenty two persons were burned to death in the train wreck

TIFFIN January 4 The collision occurred one mile from town, and nearly half a mile from any dwelling and at 3 a m It is related of one Bradley, a prominent Knight of Labor from Washington, who while the flames were barring from the car windows which had been broken in the crash of the collision, that he by some means put out his head and threw his watch and pocket book to those who could see on the outside He was pronounced on the inside and was being roasted alive but those who saw him were unable to render him relief They could hear the frenzied and horror stricken man as he madly endeavored to burst the barrier that held him in his fiery prison The charred remains of the express messenger consisted simply of two thigh bones which were found in the debris of the car The engineer and fireman of the freight reversed their engine and jumped for a snow bank The engineer of the express reversed his engine and sprang to the left The fireman endeavored to get out to the right, but being overcome with fright fell close to his crushed engine and was badly burned, but not beyond recognition. His body has been placed in a neat casket and is now at an undertaker's at Republic awaiting the arrival of his relatives There has been a steady stream of citizens from all parts of the country going to and returning from the wreck

A Collision in New England

SPRINGFIELD Mass, January 4 —Millineague station was the scene of a frightful railroad accident at an early hour this morning The 'Modoc' train from Albany approached the depot an hour behind time and running at a rate of 35 miles an hour When within a few rods of the depot five or six cars were thrown from the track by a broken wheel under the baggage car The train consisted of an engine, express car, baggage car, smoking car, day coach and two sleepers The engine and express car kept on the main track, but the baggage car was thrown against the engine of a local westbound freight train which had just pulled in and was standing on the west bound main track The freight engine was thrown on its side and completely wrecked The baggage car, smoking car and day coach immediately took fire and were consumed When the cars could be searched the charred remains of a man burned to a crisp were found, the only means of identification being the letters U S on his cap An hour later half of the burned corpse of Mr Jenks of Ludlow was found The loss of life would been much larger if the sleeping cars had not escaped The unknown body is believed to be that of a soldier who was on the train and who has not been seen since

Following is a list of injured Charles S Pickard, printer, of Westfield, probably fatally injured, Mrs Jane Jenks of Troy, badly bruised, Mrs F M Chandler of Troy, severe sprains and injured ankle, Marcus Smith of Springfield, cut about legs and fingers, James L Childs of Syracuse, bruised and badly cut about the knees, Frances E Thompson, of Campbell, Massachusetts, hurt about hips, T T Emeline Dwyer, of Honolulu, badly bruised and cut, Mary Severins, of Honolulu, flesh wound on side of face, E A S Whitford, of Providence, badly bruised, Mrs Whitford, bruised, Leslie Worden, of Springfield, terribly cut on legs, John Sanders, of West Springfield, cut on forehead and cheeks, and shoulder dislocated, Conductor G. A Shapin, bruised on head and face, F Rawson, of Mount Hope, Kansas, cut on right leg and ankle dislocated, Charles H Clark (colored) of Windsor Locks, Conn, cut and bruised, Chas Van Wyck, of Lockport, N. Y, teeth knocked out and scalp torn, P J O Reilly of Ashfield, bruised, Dexter Drury, of Framingham, bruised

Mrs Jenks and daughter and Mrs Chandler of Troy were on their way to Ludlow with the body of Mr. Jenks, which was burned Through Chicago and other western mail for all New England points, five pouches, was entirely destroyed All Westfield and Pittsfield and Albany letter mail was also destroyed There were about eighty sacks of newspapers and all but seven of them burned

English Politics

LONDON, January 4 Lord Salisbury finds that progress in the reconstruction of his cabinet is impeded by party jealousies over Mr Goschen's appointment. The whole influence of the Carlton club is exerted to persuade Lord Iddesleigh and Viscount Cross to remain in office. Lord Iddesleigh pleads that he is in ill health and unable to sustain the fatigues of the foreign office, and he will persist in his determination to retire. Viscount Cross is uncertain as to what he shall do The only positive result announced to-day has been the Earl of Northbrook's consent to join Mr Goschen in the conservative cabinet. It has not yet been decided what portfolio will be given to him The conservative opposition is mainly directed against Lord Northbrook, partly because he is suspected of sympathizing with Mr. Gladstone and partly because he has hitherto been hostile to Lord Salisbury's foreign and Indian policy. When Lord Salisbury was in the Indian office in 1876 Lord Northbrook resigned the viceroyalty of India because he differed from Salisbury regarding the latter's Afghan policy. If Mr. Goschen insists upon nominating two cabinet colleagues the conservatives prefer the Marquis of Lansdowne and Earl of Morley.

Gladstone's letter commenting upon Chamberlain's recent speech was addressed to Sir Wm Vernon Harcourt, and concluded with the significant intimation that the recipient could make what use of it he liked. Sir William sent a copy of the letter to Mr. Chamberlain, who in reply expressed his desire for a conference. Chamberlain has summoned a private meeting of leading members of the radical union to consult on terms of compromise. No party however believes that a conference would result successfully Parnellites are the supreme obstacles to a compromise, and they will not accede to anything short of the submission of Mr Chamberlain A speaker at today's meeting of the national league at Dublin declared his unabated distrust and hatred of Chamberlain

Congressional Gossip

WASHINGTON, January 4 The Evening Star says Though the announcement has not been formally made it is known that Mr. Cox of New York is to be appointed to fill the vacancy on the ways and means committee caused by Mr Hewitt's retirement. It is expected that he will be a very active member of the committee, of which he may be chairman in the fiftieth congress It is reported that he intends to take an aggressive part in trying to bring about a reduction of revenue this session In this it is thought he will act as a friend of the administration as he is closer to the president than are any of the members of the committee It is said he has an idea of bringing about a compromise by which votes can be had to take up consideration of the tariff question He and Mr Mills of Texas will be rival candidates for the ways and means chairmanship in the fiftieth congress, and the result will indicate whether it is the disposition of the party to adopt a bold and aggressive tariff policy or one more conciliatory If Mr. Cox fails to show a pretty good hand during the two months he will have on the committee this session Mr Mills will probably be before him in the fiftieth congress, If Carlisle is elected speaker, as no one seems to doubt he will be In event of an extra session, and there is a pretty general impression now that one will be called, the appointment of a successor to Mr Morrison is not so remote The organization of the next house and the formation of its policy may begin very soon after this session ends

The Star to night also says Senator Brown of Georgia will arrive in the city to night or to morrow morning A reporter was assured to-day by a party competent to speak on the subject that Senator Brown, if he resigns at all, will not do so until the meeting of the Georgia legislature next summer The reporter's informant added that Senator Brown had not yet determined to resign, that his health had been impaired, and the probability of his being compelled to abandon public life in order to restore his physical strength had been suggested by the senator's physicians, but they had not advised immediate resignation

Referring to the criticism that Senator Gordon brought upon himself by placing his resignation in the hands of the governor instead of submitting it to representatives of the people, the Georgia democrat who gave the facts to the reporter said Senator Brown will profit by the experience of Gordon and will wait till the legislature meets to resign In the meantime, if his health improves or if he has reason to believe he can retain his seat without positive injury to it, he will not resign at all

Democratic Caucus

DENVER, January 4 —Democratic members of both houses went into caucus at the Albany hotel to night, and a republican house caucus was held at the Windsor At midnight neither had adjourned, and it is impossible to learn what either has done

Minor Coin

WASHINGTON, January 4 The secretary of the treasury to-day transmitted to the house a communication from the director of the mint bearing on the issue and redemption of minor coin The director says that the experience last year has shown conclusively that minor coins may accumulate in the treasury and sub treasuries of the United States, at present the only agencies for the redemption of minor coin, while at the same time there may exist a pressing demand for the same class of coin in parts of the United States remote from the treasury and its branches. Again, he says, there may be an accumulation at the treasury or at certain sub treasuries while at the same time there may exist a demand at commercial centers even where certain other sub treasuries are located, yet no specific appropriation is available for transfer from one sub treasury to another of minor coin found to be in excess of the demand at the locality where any such excess may happen The director adds that part of the demand for minor coin (which has arisen to an unprecedented extent during the latter part of the past year), is at least unreasonable, it having appeared that in the exercise of preference for fresh coin, applications to the Philadelphia mint for large sums of minor coin have been made from various cities where an accumulation was reported at the sub-treasury. To facilitate the transfer of coin and its recoinage and cleaning for reissue, certain amendments to the revised statutes are suggested conferring on the secretary of the treasury authority to transfer coin from the treasury to the mint, and allowing him to retain from the balance of the minor coinage profit fund, which is now covered into the treasury, a sum not exceeding $35,000 in any one year, to defray the expenses of distributing

The legislature meets to-day. There is one thing that must be clearly understood. The people will not put up with the extravagance of the last session

Mr C. E. Noble seems to be considered a dark horse in the race for the speakership. Considering he is a new member, his prominence is a very high compliment.

It is rather significant that steps should be taken to bring the radical unionists and Gladstone home rulers together in this crisis Poor Chamberlain is left out in the cold by the cabinet coalition. As long as the liberal unionists remain a separate party, Chamberlain would have power. But when the whig element is represented in the ministry, it leaves Mr. Chamberlain in a small and uninfluential minority

We print some interesting congressional gossip this morning. We trust that the rumor is true that Mr. Cox will strive to do away with the surplus. Any man who can present a sensible and conservative measure that will do away with the surplus, and can get this measure through will make himself famous The time is not far distant when the people will show their disapprobation of the congress that insists on raising over $100,000,000 of revenue that is not needed

It seems to be an assured fact that Mr Goschen will be the leader of the anti-Gladstone party in the house of commons The cabinet can no longer be called conservative. Goschen has made a condition that other unionists shall be members. Among those he has selected is Lord Northbrook, who was in Gladstone's cabinet of two years ago The Carleton club objects to this change, and we do not wonder. The change involves the retirement of Sir Stafford Northcote, who succeeded Disraeli as the conservative leader in the house of commons, also the retirement of Sir Richard Cross, who has borne so brilliant a part in the debates of the house of commons The Carleton club does not like to see the ministry changed from a tory ministry to a mixed ministry simply to keep in office Still of all the unionists Mr. Goschen is least objectionable. He opposed the foreign policy of Gladstone in 1883, 1884 and 1885 He has for some time stood aloof from the liberals. No recent words of his in praise of Mr. Gladstone can be thrown into his teeth. But this alliance cannot make a strong ministry The Irish question is not the only question before the English people Many other questions like that of tariff, foreign policy, and internal reforms will divide the unionist vote, and Salisbury, by his concessions, has only stayed not prevented his overthrow.

The speech of Henry W Grady of the Atlanta Constitution at the New England dinner in New York is still talked about and quoted Many of our readers have not seen it and in answer to requests we publish three important extracts His tribute to Lincoln created the greatest enthusiasm and was as follows

But both Puritan and Cavalier were lost in the storm of their first revolution, and the American citizen, supplanting both and stronger than either, took possession of the republic bought by their common blood and fashioned in wisdom, and charged himself with teaching men free government and establishing the voice of the people as the voice of God. [Applause.] Great types, like valuable plants, are slow to flower and fruit. But from the union of these colonists, from the straightening of their purposes and the crossing of their blood, slow perfecting through a century, came he who stands as the first typical American, the first who comprehended within himself all the strength and gentleness, all the majesty and grace of the republic—Abraham Lincoln. [Loud and long continued applause.] He was the sum of Puritan and Cavalier, for in his ardent nature were fused the virtues of both, and in the depths of his great soul the faults of both were lost [Renewed applause.] He was greater than Puritan, greater than Cavalier, in that he was American (renewed applause) and that in his homely form were first gathered the vast and thrilling forces of this ideal government charging it with such tremendous meaning and so elevating it above human suffering that martyrdom, though infamously aimed came as a fitting crown to a life consecrated from its cradle to human liberty. [Loud and prolonged cheering.]

The passage on the negro was well received, and it is sincerely hoped that Mr Grady is not ahead of his neighbors

But what of the negro Have we solved the problem he presents or progressed in honor and equity towards its solution? Let the record speak to this point No section shows a more prosperous laboring population than the negroes of the south, none in fuller sympathy with the employing and land-owning class He shares our school fund, has the fullest protection of our laws, and the friendship of our people Self interests as well as honor demands that he should have this Our future, our very existence, depends upon our working out this problem in full and exact justice. We understand that when Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation your victory was assured, for he then committed you to the cause of human liberty, against which the arms of men cannot prevail—[Applause]—while those of our statesmen who made slavery the corner-stone of the confederacy doomed us to defeat, committing us to a cause that reason could not defend or the sword maintain in the light of advancing civilization [Renewed applause.] Had Mr Toombs said, which he did not say, that he would call the roll of his slaves at the foot of Bunker Hill, he would have been foolish, for he might have known that whenever slavery became entangled in war it must perish, and that the chattel in human flesh ended forever in New England when your fathers—not to be blamed for parting with what didn't pay—sold their slaves to our fathers—not to be praised for knowing a paying thing when they saw it [Laughter.] The relations of the southern people with the negro are close and cordial, We remember with what fidelity for four years he guarded our defenseless women and children, whose husbands and fathers were fighting against his freedom To his eternal credit be it said that whenever he struck a blow for his own liberty he fought in open battle, and when at last he raised his black and humble hands that the shackles might be struck off those hands were innocent of wrong against his helpless charges and worthy to be taken in loving grasp by every man who honors loyalty and devotion [Applause.] Ruffians have maltreated him, rascals have misled him, philanthropists established a bank for him, but the south with the north protests against injustice to this simple and sincere people To liberty and enfranchisement is as far as law can carry the negro The rest must be left to conscience and common sense It should be left to those among whom his lot is cast, with whom he is indissolubly connected and whose prosperity depends upon their possessing his intelligent sympathy and confidence Faith has been kept with him in spite of calumnious assertions to the contrary by those who assume to speak for us or by frank opponents Faith will be kept with him in the future if the south holds her reason and integrity [Applause.]

Speaking of the work in the new south, he says

The new south is enamored of her new work. Her soul is stirred with the breath of a new life The light of a grander day is falling fair on her face She is thrilling, sir, with the consciousness of growing power and prosperity As she stands full statued and equal among the people of the earth, breathing the keen air and looking out upon an expanding horizon she understands that her emancipation came because in the inscrutable wisdom of God her honest purpose was crossed and her brave armies were beaten [Applause.] This is said in no spirit of time serving and apology I should be unjust to the south if I did not make this plain in this presence The south has nothing to take back, nothing for which she has excuses to make In my native town of Athens is a monument that crowns its central hills—a plain white shaft. Deep cut into its shining sides is a name dear to me above the names of men, that of a brave and simple man who died in brave and simple faith Not for all the glories of New England from Plymouth Rock all the way would I exchange the heritage he left me in his patriot's death To the foot of that shaft I shall send my children's children to reverence him who ennobled their name with his heroic blood But, sir, speaking from the shadow of that memory, which I honor as I do nothing else on earth, I say that the cause in which he suffered and for which he gave his life was adjudged by higher and fuller wisdom than his or mine and I am glad that the Omniscient God held the balance of battle in His Almighty hand and that the American union was saved from the wreck of war—[Loud applause.]

The Markets

NEW YORK, January 4.—Government bonds dull and steady The bears had another field day to-day, attacking prices of stocks all round with marked success The opening was decidedly weak, declines from last evening's figures ranging up to 1. Richmond and West Point was a conspicuous exception to the general rule, opening 4 cent higher A period of dullness and comparative firmness ensued, but an attack on coalers and certain Vanderbilts carried the entire market down again, the decline being checked in the last hour. The best prices were generally those of the opening, while the lowest were recorded in the early part of the last hour

The Dartmouth hotel and a large number of other buildings were burned Individual losses are small, but the total loss will amount to $125,000.

Escape from Jail

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., January 4.—Chas Ross who murdered Officers Henry and McGuire November 20, and Peter Trinkhaus, under life sentence for murder, escaped from the county jail here last night. An accomplice furnished them with a key. There is great excitement.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

The condition of John Roach was about the same yesterday

Indications for Colorado: Slightly warmer, fair weather variable winds

Both branches of the New York legislature assembled yesterday Jas W Husted republican, was elected speaker of the assembly

Thirty miners were imprisoned by an explosion yesterday in a coal pit at Mons, Belgium Six of the men have been taken out dead

The president has commuted to five years' imprisonment the death sentence of John W. Parrott of Arkansas, convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged January 14

Charles H. Sherrill, who has been for many years the Washington representative of the Central Pacific Railroad company, died suddenly in that city yesterday of heart disease

Melvin Edwards resigned the office of secretary of state yesterday in order that he might enter upon his duties as state representative Governor Eaton appointed Edward R Hanly, deputy secretary of state, to fill the vacancy

Board of Trade

I am directed to state that the adjourned meeting of the board of trade, which was to be held on Friday evening next the 7th of January, will be postponed until the evening of Monday, the 10th inst The by-laws are to be revised at said meeting, and it is very important that there shall be a full attendance of members, hence it is thought well to postpone the occasion from Friday, on which night there is to be a great counter attraction at the opera house to Monday as before stated.

The standing committees will also be announced at this meeting and other important business will come up and it is hoped and expected that there will be a large attendance of members

Gentlemen who have made application for membership but who have not yet been elected are requested to be present at the meeting, the first business of which will be the election of applicants to membership, after which they can take part in the proceedings of the meeting.

The Wool Market

Coates Bros wool commission merchant of Philadelphia, in their circular of the 1st instant, state that the year closes on very quiet markets, but with the general expectation that January will show an improvement in demand and probably some hardening in prices The light supply of fleece, unwashed and tub wools has prevented much weakening in the values of these descriptions but fall Texas and territory wools have been, in some instances pushed to sale, which has resulted in breaking prices on them There has been little demand for New Mexican wools but they have been held with confidence Ordinary pulled wools have continued to accumulate, while choice pullings have been sold up There are no foreign auctions now being held, and, although the last London sales closed at a decline, yet it was not sufficient to put the best foreign stock on a parity with domestic.

Manufacturers have been disappointed in the good market, which is taking their product but at no advance in price The value of wool is in but few instances higher, while more kinds are lower than the quotations of a year ago Fine fleece is held at about the same figures now as in January, 1886 Medium and quarter bloods are higher now Combing and delaines are about the same values Colorado, New Mexican, Texas and territory wools are all lower The average of the market is therefore lower to-day than it was a year ago Taking this into consideration, with the light stocks now apparent, and the many months that must elapse before new wool can come to market, most holders show a natural confidence in the situation

The following quotations on Colorado wools are given.

COLLEGE EDUCATION.

erican Boy and the American College.

owing paper was read before the Teachers' Association by Professor J. Boulder.

be impossible to discuss this ques in only suggest points in the discus n only, in general terms, state my ad indicate some of the lines of would pursue to substantiate it did it.

d then to give my points and ke, shall begin at the end and work , shall begin with the college and ould be, and end with the boy and ould be. What, then, is meant by lard college curriculum Is it y Harvard, Yale, Ann Arbor Cor t that of the average American col andard generally adopted in the roughout the country I take it tter, for, though some half dozen ay set the lead, may determine ultimately become the standard, sent standard is undoubtedly that nerally followed. In other words, ard" is the old somewhat fixed and , rather than the new elastic and orse, it is the rigid course that has Latin, Greek, logic, mathematics f the natural sciences, rather than ective course that takes in a wider nowledge, especially in the modern and sciences Now, of course, it is to argue this great question here t will even be difficult to state my n fairly with the necessary reserves ions, and modifications in individ u local circumstances And, pers all, our position on this and simi s will largely depend on our con- th aims and end of college edu here, as in philosophy, men are stellans or Platonists, rather than afterwards Well, then, to get a on which to build, a position from ari, I may at once briefly state th t ould give a practical education t ident out It should impart it will be of use to us through r that use it should give us the y rules in this game of life so all are agreed but through it the paper I want with your trial I hope, approval to insist on an portant function of the col one that the public too easily of, Just it is the rdian of knowledge for its own medical school , the law schoo ical seminaries the schools of engineering, the schools of prac plied sciences will see to it that ledge shall not perish from the arth, but while the most valu cessary institutions (supported or not for that's not the question) rofessional training, the colleges should be very careful not to lo s sight any sensational institutions, away from their own high ideals end that would be disastrous vast difference between special o al training and general are, whout any talk of race (for there is no such thing, in of knowledge) one is the main ject of the institutions I have other that of the colleges I what Huxley says of educa ts the instruction of the intellec f nature, under which name I in ly things and their forces but it ways, in the fashioning of the of the will into an earnest and to move in harmony with those to of where an often quoted ks of it as having to do with the llect and the will, and refers to man as "one who, no stunted ll of life and fire, but whose pas ned to come to heel by a vigor servant of a tender conscience, ned to love all beauty, whether of art, to hate all vileness and to s as himself then without further argument and general mental training are of the colleges, I mean the of the standard college curs the whole, I say, for I would derstood as occupying an ultra position, taking the present perfection and seeing no face improvement, all progress all lution There are I believe made and improvements to be d worked for, but they are rather detail than in the ground plan, to be adopted gradually and in the fullness of time," and not to be proclaimed with a flourish nd hailed as the new educa ert my belief here as in other s may be indicated by the w d ll er than by revolution, and that very conservative one. In the ve in and defend the present io rigid old fashioned standard as the basis of most of our co devotes most of the four years e course to Latin, Greek and , a few of the natural sciences g of the modern languages The are chiefly the e, and again the y b necessary that I only in lieste n I leave my hearers to fill in. ause the present standard or one the same is the old reliable and and has been at least reasonably since the revival of learning in century it has produced the il minds in literature, science and t is p rhaps more to the point, generations of cultivated, civil- ed who with all their shortcom s had their share—filled their ith pleasure to themselves, profit nd withal with a quiet grace and in the hurry and flurry of modern we condemn have nearly lost. dence if not common sense should rowing to the winds the old and ith all its disadvantages, while its knowledged and its results are set up the untried and the now nts proved by all means, but n er even national experiment is and hence foolish "If experi- ophy is good for anything, says a recent English writer on gov urely the first inference from it beliefs are likely to be true, and likely to be good, in proportion ld, and I have therefore so far stood that test Of course age does not sufficient proof, for conditions ny rate it should be taken as uptive evidence and certainly it istent that those who profess the leation for the purely experimental of philosophy, should be so w over anything old just because to take up anything new just new ecause it gives a fair start in life, which an excellent foundation ofessional study and for the ss of life It lays a broad and ion for any superstructure, and urses might perhaps be drawn up yield earlier professional fruit, equally good doctors and lawyers his one is, I believe on the whole, give us the best all round developed men and citizens curriculum gives us the ele knowledge, all science, in his- uage, in the so called humanities, it lays the foundation and the only foundation for all future study of these its general its his beliefs and its doings and the science of thou ght mutuality of continuity of mankind allowing the perfect a bridged course of evolution, et all that is best of all the Latins treat or translation, for Stuart Mill, "is like a man always turns a crossword fashion In plain English, in a pass and a word or two of the type nd It lays the recognised, lays the foundation of the elements study of nature the cells with us the keys of all knowledge the nature of latory tradition for the study of man and of nature by the study of their important they teach us how to read" as Carlyle says and if we go on to the university the professional school or the wider school of life we have at least the tools, the spirit and the elements of success and if we end our education with our college life, as also so many do we truly feel as used that thus far at all events we have made the best use of our time and energy But it may be objected that we thus get only the elements of true of the fruit on the tree of knowledge, that in our high school and college course we are only laying foundations on which we may never build, sowing where we may never reap To which I would reply that

Third—As the college course is very usually limited to four years and as there is no general movement to have it extended, either a select course of some kind must be taken or we will have only a diffuse study ranging over the overwhelming fields of science, a superficial smattering," the shallow draughts which intoxicate the brain though this latter plan is unfortunately getting a temporary hold on some of our colleges, we may safely take for granted that the only course that can permanently endanger the supremacy of the rigid standard college curriculum is that of "eclectic courses of study" as Dr Wilson of the university of Toronto says "Arranged for the student at his own sweet will in which he is to culminate from the undergraduate course all that is distasteful to him, give different attention to whatever suits his present bent and graduate in the requirements of a standard of his own" Again, this eminent Scotch scholar, with some half century's experience in college work writes

I doubt if any earnest student looks back in later years with regret on the compulsory studies imposed on him, or at least on the inflexible relations which compelled his adherence to a strictly defined course The eminent preacher, Robertson of Brighton himself an Oxford graduate, when pressing on a young friend the advantages of a rigidly prescribed course dwells on the lasting benefits resulting from the pursuit for three or four years of a distasteful study, and adds "I defy any young man to create it for himself At college I attempted this, and now I feel I was utterly, irreparably wrong Now I would give £500 a year to have read on a bad plan chosen for me but steadily In this confession I am sure not a few will join, and those most strongly who with exceptional gifts not unwisely used in later years look back on opportunities irretrievably lost, not by idleness but by the evasion of distasteful studies" I corroboration of this I may say that if I were asked to name the one defect of the American system of education as compared with the German and that runs from the common school to the college, I should point to this over crowding of studies with its necessary accompaniment of a system of options How can it be otherwise says

Three at first I was a pupil here in I guess
Within a few I got it a work being worse
First to think this the new character in
By overt effort the under ruin

But on the other hand moral discipline results from a steady systematic and rigidly prescribed course of study I can no longer dwell and must devote the remaining few minutes of my time to "The American Boy" Who should be advised to go to college The only answer in harmony with the foregoing is, Everybody who can afford it Why? Some urge because it pays because education increases man's productive power and gives him a better chance to make a living or a chance to make a better living Up to a certain point this may be true but as I have grave doubts of its truth when we come to the college, I am not entitled to use it as an argument I confess to some sympathy with the view that regards inducing a boy to go to college by promising that it will pay or that he'll make money by it, as much like getting people to join the church by holding out similar inducements Why then should everybody who can do so be advised to attend college The reason seems "plain as the way to parish church" briefly because as Goethe says of learning a foreign language it doubles a man's individuality," It educates and enlarges the powers and capacities of mind and will, and if it does not make larger, happier, better men, it at least gives the opportunity, without which such a consummation cannot be attained And be it remembered that it is not mainly increased production, increased trade and commerce that we want but men large hearted, manly men"

"And what" Trade now cities
Like ab its along the shore,
And thatch with towns the prairie broad
With railways froned o er
They are but sailing foam bells
Along thought's causing stream
And take their shape and sun color
From him that sends the dream [Emerson

The highest mountain peaks never rise from the plains the highest trees are never found in the open fields or among lowly shrubs but both tower aloft to the skies where the general struggle is upward, the one among snow capped chains, where the little hills seem mountains tall, the other proudly rearing their lofty heads from among the monarchs of the forest, so the great men of the race are never found among savage tribes or illiterate nation, but where the general standard of education and intelligence is high As Emerson says "Every great and memorable community has consisted of formidable individuals, each of whom, like the Roman or the Spartan lent his own spirit to the state and made it great Yet only by the supernatural is a man strong, nothing is so weak as an egotist Nothing is mightier than we, when we are vehicles of a truth, before which the state and the individual are alike ephemeral"

What can counteract and check the worship of mammon and mere material success, and our restless, sordid activity and the objects of ambition which our European neighbors kindly inform us we as a people are guilty of, what can we look to raise opinion to a loftier seat, to introduce and foster higher ideals of life if not to our colleges and our churches? I would like to see everyone go to college who has health enough and money enough and brains enough to carry him through A liberal education of the nature I have stated ennobles and blesses the individual by giving the actual work a day world an ideal background of poetry and romance Only those who are able to take a refined and elevating rest on the mountain tops of philosophy and poetry can know how refreshed in spirit these thrice happy mortals resume their daily tasks, perhaps their daily drudgery Even practical Huxley whom few will regard as a dreamy visionary pities those who have not learned to take refuge in the great source of pleasure without alloy, the serene resting place for worn human nature,—the world of art," And if a college education is a blessing and solves to the individual, a thing of beauty a joy forever, it is if possible more than this to the state In a true monarchy or aristocracy large classes of the people may be steeped in ignorance, but a democracy without a high standard of education, intelligence and morality is a sham I shall close with President Garfield's weighty words on this "The voters of the union, who make and unmake constitutions and upon whose will hang the destinies of our government can transmit their supreme authority to no successors save the coming generation of voters who are the sole heirs of the sovereign power If that generation comes to its inheritance blinded by ignorance and corrupted by vice, the fall of the republic will be certain and remediless

What Aiken Has to Say.

I wish everybody to bear in mind that besides my Museum and Fur store on Pike's Peak avenue, I carry on a Music and Sewing Machine business at No 5 North Tejon street, second door north of the First National bank I suppose you all know that I do quite an extensive business in the renting of Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machines I also have various makes of instruments and machines FOR SALE, and I am desirous of selling as many as I can It is the most natural thing in the world for persons having an expensive article like a Piano to buy, to imagine that they must make some unusual effort to get it cheap So many will send to a distant city, or to some manufacturer, who retails at less than wholesale prices, "to introduce," and ships on three weeks' trial, with a book and a stool and a chromo thrown in People forget that good goods sell themselves, but that the most extraordinary inducements must be offered to purchasers of that which is worthless A very good plan in buying a Piano, if you have an agent at home in whom you have any confidence is to go to him in a friendly sort of a way and consult with him about quality and prices, and if you are satisfied he can do about as well by you as some one else, give him your order and let him make his little commission, thus enabling him to increase his stock—helping the prosperity of the town—making your own property more valuable and keeping everybody good natured Don't you see?

If your agent is permanently located and wants to increase his business, he probably will not swindle you any worse than the man who is a thousand miles away and never expects to sell you a second bill and if you are to be swindled at all it is better to have your swindler close by so you can have the satisfaction of thumping him

It is my private opinion that I can duplicate any bargains that any Colorado Springs resident has ever secured on any new Piano

Yours truly,

PAINTS & WALL PAPER.

Our New Styles of WALL PAPER have been arriving for the last month and we would say that our stock is the largest and best that can be seen in this city We do not hesitate in saying that if any one is in need of Wall Paper and will give us a call but what we can please them in Styles and Prices, however fastidious they may be, and as we do not employ any but first class tradesmen you can depend upon it that your work will be done so that you won't have to be doing it over every six months You will then see that it don't pay you to employ those who resort to Painting and Paper Hanging when every other devise has failed them for a living. Or should you listen to the recommends of those who talk them up, for they will only do so when there is money in it for themselves. Paints, Oils, Lead, Brushes, Varnishes, Glass and Window Shades.

Mr. John M. Duffy has been appointed postmaster at Monument.

The Rev. H. Martyn Hart, the distinguished Denver divine, was in the city yesterday.

Misses Brower and Spicer's kindergarten reopened on Monday, after a week's vacation.

Mr. L. A. Wait, editor of the Gothic Silver Record, left for Gothic on the Salt Lake express yesterday morning.

Mr. A. E. Liverman, traveling freight agent of the Union Pacific Railroad company, is in the city and is stopping at The Antlers.

In a notice in our business locals this morning Bacon & Carr announce that Mr. D Lynch is no longer the driver of their hack.

The Hour real estate and loan agency makes some announcements this morning concerning city and ranch property offered for sale.

Antlers Arrivals—S. M. Jackson, Salida; H Martyn Hart, Denver; W. W. Mills, Boston; Charles A. Hammond, New York city; N. Weinberger, Denver; Al Rohrback, Philadelphia; A. E. Liverman, Denver.

A stated conclave of Pike's Peak Commandery No 6 will be held at the asylum tomorrow evening at half past seven o'clock to open a commandery of Knights Templar, by order of the E. C. A. Matthews, recorder.

By a notice elsewhere it will be seen that the board of trade meeting is to be postponed from Friday evening, the 7th, to Monday evening the 10th inst., on account of the counter attraction of the "Mighty Dollar" on the first named evening.

This from the Pueblo Evening Star: "It now seems to be conceded by all that the Missouri Pacific will build either to Pueblo or Colorado Springs the coming summer. It rests with Pueblo citizens whether we get the road or not. Colorado Springs people are working tooth and toe nail for it, and if Pueblo does not make stronger efforts for the road than she now is Colorado Springs will pick the plum."

Mr. E. P. Moon has furnished us with the following weather record for December, 1886, near Husted, Col. Highest temperature, 66—on the 9th, lowest temperature, -7° on the 13th; mean temperature, 31 76°, highest daily mean temperature, 43 on 9th and 10th, lowest daily mean temperature, 16° on the 18th, number clear days, (strictly) 6; number fair days, 15, number days on snow fell, 4; total snowfall, 6 inches, prevailing wind, south, 13 days.

An interesting and enthusiastic meeting of Grace Church association was held in the rooms of the association on the corner of Platte avenue and Weber street, at which the annual reports of the officers were received and placed on file. The present executive committee were unanimously re-elected for the ensuing year. The committee will hold a meeting during the week to elect officers and appoint the standing committees which will be announced in church next Sunday.

At the meeting of the Mozart Choral society last evening it was determined to give a concert on Tuesday evening, January 18, in the Congregational church. This is the first opportunity the public will have to judge of what the society has accomplished in the short period of its existence. It is the only organization of its kind in the history of the city that has ever achieved the measure of success which it enjoys. It has now an active membership of forty and an associate membership of thirty five. There is a surplus of several hundred dollars in the treasury, and the existence of the society is assured until the first of next May.

The following record for the weather of 1886, as taken on a ranch near Husted, at an elevation of 6650 feet, has been given to us by Mr. F. P. Moon of Husted. Highest temperature 97, May 27, lowest temperature —30, January 7, highest daily mean temperature 75 August 13, lowest daily mean temperature 12, January 7, number clear days (strictly) 85, number fair days 1, number days on which rain or snow fell, 112, total precipitation (rain) 11,154 inches, total precipitation (snow) 20 5, prevailing wind, south, 150 days. In the above are given as fair quite a good many days on which very light showers fell, a mere sprinkle. The total precipitation (rain and snow) is since April 1st.

The sale of seats commences this morning at Bell's drug store for Mr and Mrs Florence's engagement of one night at the opera house next Friday evening. As mentioned before, they will present their renowned comedy, "The Mighty Dollar," and while it will receive its first presentation in this city, it has been presented throughout Europe and America for the past twelve years. As the Hon Bardwell Slote, member from the Kohesh district, nobody has given such a distinct life to the congressman, with all the numerous weaknesses usually attached to him, as Mr W J Florence. As Mrs General Gilfory, Mrs Florence puts a picture in the dramatic gallery so full of human nature, so complete and finished as a certain class of society women, that once seen she will never be forgotten as long as that type lives. She is the handsomest dresser on the stage, and is one of the few actresses whose costumes are really made in Paris.

MARRIED.

PITSCHNER HALTHUSEN.—In this city on 1st inst by the Rev. A. R Kieffer, rector of Grace church, Mr William F Pitschner of Denver and Miss Maud B. Halthusen of Colorado Springs.
